G.O.P.-Bourbons Rapped By Solon On Stand In Own Defense

Both the Democrats and Republican parties have failed to solve the American economic problem are "patching" the effects instead of curing the cause: machines have wiped out employment, and a new monetary system, or medium of exchange must be found to restore purchasing power of their customers, Senator George W. Rochester, of Los Angeles, told the Home Business Association of Santa Ana this morning.

Unless the 11,000,000 unemployed of the country are given a chance to participate in national produc-tion and share in national income; unless the business men and women of America have the vision to save the situation within the next decade, there will be a national economic collapse, and a "man with a sword will come by on a horse and save it for them," warned the speaker, who addressed the local Daniger's cafe.

Lacked Vision Europe lacked the vision; Latin American nations lacked the vis-ion, and dictators took over their ountries, he said. HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.- Star teams are the surest money-makers in Hollywood. Bill Powell and Myrna Loy—as a duo—are far more popular than either one is alone. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers consort with one another as harmoniously as bread and but-ter, while Fred, on his own for the first time in "Damsel in Dis-tress," comes too close a cropper for comfort. MacMurray and Lombard, Laurel and Hardy, MacDonald and Eddy—those are all names to conjure with-as long as they are linked on the theatre marquees Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell -as a team-were worth millions After they were separated, Jane went into a decline and Charlie vanished from the screen.

The priceless ingredient in every such combination seems to to be personal harmony between the co-stars. Gaynor and Farrell were in love, consequently their love scenes were believable and appealing. All of the other great team combinations have been based on personal friendship

And that is exactly why I cannot understand the continued teaming of Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond Ann is a grand little actress, Gene to the majority of fans, is an appealing personality. Either one alone, would have a chance to reach the top. Together they are a dismal loss. I do not profess to like one another more thoroughly than any two co-stars in screen history. Keeping them together comes under the general heading of senseless cruelty

Today, sitting in the Twentieth Century-Fox cafe, I watched the parade of the extra girls and bit girls. Somewhere in the background an orchestra should have been playing "The Wedding of the Painted Doll." Some are blondes, some are brunettes, a few are redheads; some are short, some are tall, some are neither short nor tall—but each wears the same make-up, the same style of dress of artificiality. They look like noth ing so much as mannikins stamped but by a machine. While watched one of the studio's scenarists and I tried to decide why they all conform to a single pattern and gave up the task after making a few minor observations. For one thing, each one plucks her eyebrows in exactly the same "exotic" fashion and, as a result, each one has an expression of wideeyes surprise.

When Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power-until a few weeks ago the most publicized sweethearts in Hollywood—meet in the studio cafe. a hush settles over the room. Everyone leans forward and does everything but cup an ear in the effort to hear any conversation between them. We are not really romantic, but, by heaven, we are the most curious, interfering, gos--minded people that ever lived. But every day the meeting occurs—and every day we have listened
